

somebody, anybody could put up a doctor dance for somebody, like old man Simmons that use to have it.

Yeah. I use to belong to that when I was a little boy. My father made me a member of that. Old Man Simmons use to have. That's where I been in there with them. Little boy.

GRANT WAS TOLD TO IMITATE A HORSE

Mrs. Osborne: Tell them what you imitated, Grant.

Uh, my uncle--my father used to imitate a horse, black horse. Well that way he never did wear it--I was too young to tell me about that. I was too young.

Mrs. Osborne: Yeah, his father died when he was just young boy.

So old man, when he big boy he told to old man Matthews. He use to wear--my father he give it to old man Will-Matthews, that's my uncle, that's the one that he wear.

Mrs. Osborne: That's his close relations. His own brother to his father. When he give it to him he was young yet. I use to go in there with my father, I can just barely remember, and when I got a little older I went in there again. And I stayed in there. And when I got older I took part and so they told me you better go see old man like that you know. I saw old man and he showed me. Told me you know, go over there and ask him, you know. The ones he use to wear, my father made the same one. He has the one I had--he made it the same as that one. My old man, that one, the same way, same horse, everything.

(Who made it for you?)

Old man, my father had it made from old man.

Mrs. Osborne: Oh. Just like your father huh?

Yeah. Just like the one he had. Same as he made for old man, gave to old man.

Mrs. Osborne: He imitated a horse and Grant's father you know, and so he had Bill Matthews he had made one for Bill Matthews just exactly like the one--
