

(Now, this was where--this is how they were actually performing?)

Yeah.

Mrs. Osborne: We use to have an otter hat just sticking out.

Got little bells on the ends there and when they move these little bells on there, and when they walk they just, you know, jingle. And them--there was whole--owl wing, the whole thing over here and then they were those turbans you know with otter. Boy that was pretty, just I could just see him over at the round house--I mean over at the south--and I was just young, but I could still see him.

(Grant, who else are these--including yourself and these people that you mentioned, but who are some of these other people who were doctors and who performed and what was some of the different kinds of animals that they imitated in the ceremony?)

I heard old man talking about that one time. About that--and I'd mentioned the ones I know and he mentioned the ones he know, about 12 that take part in there. Twelve different kind of (Pawnee word).

(What does that mean, that mean animals?)

Yeah, different you know. Even these cows they call different you know, (Pawnee word).

Mrs. Osborne: Just imagine most that you could think of you know.

(You said your's was imitating a horse ?)

Yeah.

(And some of the parts of the costume or some of the parts that you wore were imitations of various parts of the horse?)

Yeah.

(Such as the tail and this buffalo robe over your shoulders?)

Yeah, that's all.
