

declared, is the reason why she cut a pole, a sapling and stick--tack corn shucks on top and then a white cloth below, to signify that peace had been declared.

(She stuck that in the front yard so people would know.)

Uh-huh, so the passerby would see.

(How long, how tall was the sapling before she cut it?)

About 16 feet long.

(Now, she tacked some corn shucks to the top of the sapling, and then wrapped a white cloth about the middle of the sapling?)

Yes.

(Had your mother ever seen anything like this before, or did she see anything like this later on, that she remembers?)

Never.

(Now, I believe your mother told me yesterday that she was born during the Christmas month of 1877?)

She said that her mother told her that she was born Christmas month.

(This would be, if she was about six, this would be in 1883. What time of year did this happen?)

What time of month?

(Of the year--spring, summer, fall.)

She said it was during the winter month.

(Winter month?)

Uh-huh.

(Now, had you heard of any fighting that was going on among the Seminoles before this peace was declared?)

She said she heard something about it, but she was too young to know definite.

(Would this have been between the supporters of John Jumper and the supporters of Chupco?)
