

Probably about the fall of 1896. Or 1897, I believe it was.

I don't know where he went. I know when I come home--they had an Indian name for him and they told me he was gone--boy, I broke down and cried.

(Why did he leave?)

I don't know why he left. He had a sister in Texas and a niece in Fort Worth, too, I guess. And he was getting along in years.

I don't know if he was or not.

We used to call him "Bread Man." That's what we term the Mexicans. On account of these tortillas, you know.

(Did you call all Mexicans that?)

(How do you say that?)

'Sometimes we call them "Chimayo." Yeah. Chimahua.

That's just kind of an interpretation of "chimahua." "Chimahua"--that's a Mexican word.

cw'cw'.niinE n

(While we're on the subject of these Mexicans, were there very many Mexicans