

(Then they send 'em back to--)

Then they go back.

(Like Mama was showing me where they had that one wedding. It look like it was just out in the open. Did they have it near their home?)

Well, they must have. Well, we didn't have Charlie's wedding here, and we didn't have it at her place. We had it down at the village. And we used to have a place there where Walter Martin lives, about there. But there where Mrs. Harvey's place is, where Viola lives, that's where we had the camp. They all came from Aunt Martha's house over there. That's where the bride was. They all came from over there. We had everything down at the village.

(Well, when was that, when they had the last wedding?)

My brother's? Well, let's see, gosh, I can't remember. It's been years.

Well, it's been about 18, or 19 years ago now, or was in in '48. I didn't keep account. Well, I'll say 20 years ago. 'Cause his boy, Raymond, he's the oldest, he graduated from high school about two years ago. He must be about 19. It must be about 20 years ago.

(Remainder of this tape is inaudible--about five minutes.)
