T- 270
Informant: George Ann Gray Robinson
Osage
Bartlesville, Oklahoma'
Interviewed by Kathryn Red Corn

Rage # 1 · Side A ,

George Ann Gra Robinson, Fullblood unalloted Osage, daughter of the late Clarence and Jenny Gra.

PARENTS INFLUENCE ON CHILDREN

This is Mrs. Robinson, and I ar going to relate just some of the nemories that I have as a child. I was born in Pawhuska, Oklahoma, on the old family home and grew up as a youngster there. I have very many vivid memories of my childhood, mostly centered around my father who was mother and father both, having lost my mother at an early age. And some of the things that I remember most wividly to me as a child was a big hap y family and with a father, that was a very stern dic. illinarian whom we loved and had great resect for. And I think this is one of the Basis for the happy family that we had, because we knew that he was really and truly not only our father and farent but our friend. And this was the main teachings and the philosophy that he conveyed to us youngsters, I had many brothers and sisters. I came from a family of eleven but some of the children died in infancy, and there were in my family, a sister, Mary and Anna, and Louise, Genevieve, and two younger brothers, Andrew and Clarence. And my dad always nade it very pointedly that we be very close to each other and seeing after one another and sharing: Now, I think this is more or less just statin; the harm background of a good life with a large family which I felt had reflected in my life, today. In speaking about respect for a parent, I'd like to just make an observation here. In many of the situations and roblems confronting, I think, our Indian children today, raw be that they are lackin; in knowin; just what they do want, and proper juidance. I am very happy to think that I had a father for such a short time and he instilled in me such a stron; desire to know exactly what I wanted. And I think it was because of his teachings that I felt this,