

they do now for races, I think. Most of 'em go down there. Something like Las Vegas, isn't it?

(Yeah.)

Long time. I guess it still that way. I never been down there. But I've heard 'em talk about it - goin' down there.

(Well, I know a lot of 'em go down there now, but I was just wondering, if a long time ago a lot of 'em went down there.)

Yeah. They did.

(Did you used to go to Colorado in the summer?)

Yeah. I used to go about every summer. Everybody went and we all took out.

(Mamma said they used to go.)

All Osages used to go. One family would go and whole gang go. We meet 'em all out there and get together.

(Mamma said they used to go as soon as school was out and they'd come back right before school started in time for -)

Oh, most of 'em just went for two or three weeks. And when one leave they all leave.

That's right. They didn't stay long. One time we went down there, live in Manitou.

That road, you know, goin' up to Pikes Peak? You know one of those little buildings lay right next to that little old creek over there with water in it -

(Oh, where the arcade is?)

That little old - water run from there all the time, you know. We rented a house there. Used coal to cook with and just like livin' in the country, you know. We rented that house. Rent there was high then. Stayed there a week. Use coal for fuel, you know. I don't know what most of 'em did.

MANY SIDE TRIPS IN COLORADO

They just drove around to all the sights they been to. All of us had been to every sight. - Royal Gorge, Canyon City - go through the penitentiary. Go through there about every time went up there. I think I went to Denver once or twice. I didn't
