

still there. I think Jean and them had it awhile.

(Yeah. That's where they lived?)

That's where they brought him, there. I remember all that myself - I can remember that. But I guess that Brother Raymond was in school all that time, you know. I don't know. I can't remember at all about their mother, though, dying or anything, but I remember saying she's buried over there on Lookout's farm, and then his aunt raised him.

(When you lived out there on your farm with your grandparents, did Mr. Neal, did he live out around there, too?)

You mean out to my farm here? Well no, we never did live out there. We always lived out here at the village mostly. You mean Clara May's daddy?

(Uh-huh.)

No, we lived at the village mostly.

(Out here at camp?)

Uh-huh. That's where he died. I had my farm, but we just had it leased out, you know.

(Did you always live around Pawhuska?)

Yeah. Out here at the village. And after he died, I still lived out there. I was still living there when - see - Clara May was just about five months old when her daddy died and she was three years old when Hill and I got married, and then is when we moved to the farm. I married him.

(Oh, out to this place?)

Uh-huh. We moved out here. We lived out here. I had a home - it burned up. The school teacher was living there. I believe his name was Bafatin or Hufatin or somethin'. I rented to - taught out to Indian Camp school. I don't know what happened. They said fire caught in the flue, you know. I hated that. I had a nice little home out there and when I moved to the farm, why I just
