

this has been used. But it's been discovered by Indians way back in the older days. Just like the white man discover something--maybe perhaps to eat or drink. And of course, they advertise it for big money. But this peyote is not put up that way. It's--they call it a place of worship. And they don't let the children--small childrens to go in and to eat this. They're mostly the older people. Their wives go in. Even if they are sick, why they drink this tea, peyote tea, or eat this peyote, and worship. Ever human being or different race of people, I may say that has a way of worshipping way back yonder. But since years come, why the white people--the good white people--has brought the Bible to us in worshipping God. Therefore the Indians, the older people, began to quit this and join the church. Different churches of their choice. And worship like the white man. They eat this peyote. They dry it and they eat it green. And it's very strong when they take it, to worship with.

(Jennie: And they make tea out of it.)

One of our greatest man that we have, even my father, Quanah Parker--Chief Quanah Parker, Comanche and other chiefs that uses this--And they were very very respectful, loyalty unto this peyote ways. Now it has been taken away from the Indians, and we are worshipping now the real true God that points the way of life, the way of the Cross that leads home to glory.

(Jenny: But then there's a lot of young men that use it today. They still use it. Some younger men, younger than him, they using it now. And they believe so strong, they still worship like they do long time. Cause it's from their fathers and grandfathers and they still use it. They put up tipis even today. They had one up north here, for Mothers Day. They put up a tip and sat up all night and beat drums, sing.)

(Oh, they did? Where was that meeting held?)

(Jennie: It was Jack--(Kiowa conversation) well it's just been a few weeks that I guess they had it.)

She just talking about, a week ago they had a meetin'. But I thought you was
