

they josh about the way when he made the will what he said. And Harry West said, he pointed to me and said, "He knows where those lands set." And so, Luther asked me, "What did Boinedal say about when they made the will?" Well, he said, "Brother, Brother Kikoh, listen to me. I'm giving you this money. That's lots of money now. And I want you to take care of it," he said. "I want you to take care of it, I don't want your wife to have it. Don't let her have it," he said. And then he call her, call her to him. "Don't let Tsonomah have any bit of that money. She just squanders. You--there's enough money for you and your children to live comfortable for a long time, if you take care of it. Don't let her get ahold of it," he said.

(What was her name?)

JAMES MOONEY LIVES WITH GUY'S FAMILY WHILE HE WRITES ABOUT INDIANS

Well, that was a story that James Mooney--he told to James Mooney during--James Mooney lived with us and tell us about those old time incidents, and I got a lot of those stories from James Mooney. Him and his boy lived with us. He had a boy named Brian. James Mooney's boy's name was Brian. I was just wondering if that boy is still alive. He could be. He was just a boy and I'm living yet.

(How did James Mooney come to live with you?)

He came out to write these Indian stories and history of the ten-calendar-history, and peyote worship and all that. And he lived with us maybe two years.
