

(Yeah, where did you get to go to school, Mr. Ragsdale?)

I went to Rose--

(At Rose.)

I just quit, I never did finish it. I was over there at home and dad died, and I thought I had to take care of mom. I had a sister there. She was teaching school. The way I looked at it, I thought I couldn't go to school. It was just an idea. I sure wish I had gone on to school.

(Yeah. This was your allotment here, wasn't it?)

This one was. That's mom's. We stayed with mom over there at Rose. I got married. I didn't marry till in '23. Stayed there till about '35. Then we moved over here.

(Well, this country has changed a lot since you've been here, hasn't it?)

(Not clear)--I used to know quite a lot of these people around here. Nowadays just a few people here. All the fellows that lived around, that grew up with me, most of them are gone, just one or two left.

(End of Side A. Interview continues on Side B.)