

Yeah. And then she boxed it up. People used to raise tobacco years ago. I used to know "feller" out here raised lots of it, dry it and bind it.

(No you don't see it raised in this country anymore.)

They could run whiskey out of Missouri on these gravel roads, dirt roads, trails and get back into Indian Territory.

WHISKEY RUNNERS - MAKING MONEY

(Yeah, there was a lot of whiskey moved out of Missouri and in to Oklahoma, Indian Territory in those early days.)

I used to know an old boy. He used to go down there and buy whiskey, wouldn't cost very much. Then he'd bring it up there and sell it for about $2.00 a bottle you know.

(Well, that was good business I guess.)

He made money, but he taken a lot of chances.

(Oh yeah. Yeah, people make a living all kinds of ways.)

Every way in the world.

(Every way--some body already thought about it--how to make money.)

I didn't make eas; money. I had to work for mine.

(Well, me too. I had to work hard.)

I have always worked. I started when I was about 8 or 10 years old. I started in at 50¢ a day. Finally, got up to 60 centa a day.

(That was big money, wasn't it, in those days?)

Oh, yeah. Buy anything you want then. Worked for one hay crew outfit one whole season for $3.00 a week and board. I thought I was making a lot of money. It was a lot of money at that time. (words not clear)--I seen an old lady sitting there. An old boy was walking around outside with a bow and arrow. I asked him, "What would you take for one like that?" He said "Five dollars." I said, "The next time I come back I am going to buy one." There
