

for Phillips, but he's an accountant and he's busy. And his outside interests are boy scouting. He has a scout group that he takes on trips and everything. Then he's quite a — oh he likes to play baseball. Used to be quite a soft-ball fan but with his other activities he's quite a Mason. And by the time he gets through with his job, then he comes home in the evenings and he's got something to go to every evening. The only time I can talk to him is to call him up at the office. And his wife works at the bank, her name is Barbara and they have two boys, David and John. And so my family kinda goes in pairs. Sammy has two girls, and Vernon has the two boys, and William and Annette have one boy apiece. Then my other little grandson and a step-granddaughter. So I have seven — eight grandchildren.

Then son number five, he lives in Sioux City. He's a — I don't know what you'd call him. He's just in and out of everything but he is an — I guess I'd say, architect, really. He used to work at Boeing Aircraft at Wichita, but he got to where he was having stomach trouble and finally the doctor in his examination finally discovered he was going to have ulcers. And the doctor advised him to change jobs, do something, else. Or if he wouldn't, it might be serious. So he quit that for a while when he was in Wichita and then he went in to making patios. He joined a building firm and from then he made patio blocks and he fixed patios for these new homes. And he made some very elaborate patios for some of those nice big homes in Wichita. Then, finally, he — when that began to finally play out then he got to feeling better so he rejoined this firm and he went back to work for them for four or five years. And now he finally quit again because he was afraid his old trouble would come back. And now he runs a night club in Sioux City, Iowa. And he's kind of prone to having asthma and hay fever when he's down here, so he's never troubled with that up there. So I guess that'll be his permanent home because he's bought a home and he has this night club that he calls the Long Branch. And then he occasionally he does work for these people; it's something they know he can do for a short length of time. But he quit doing it because of this stomach ailment. It would clear up every now and then so he's getting out now away from it, so he's been enjoying better health. He comes home about once and twice a year. So I guess that's about the limit of my history.

We have what we call the Doll Dance. That was the traditional ceremonial custom of the Delawares. And it was usually put on in the summertime along in July, most times in July. And it was very ceremonial and it was put on by this little old lady, she has passed away now. She had a little doll that was handed down, you know, from mother to daughter until she got it. It was
