

("buffalo"?)

"n^hm^hku.ts "

("deer"?)

"ar^hka".

("elk"?)

I can't think of it.

("eagle"?)

"pia otsu". And they call it another way too, it's "kwi.^tne". "Big eagle".

Any kind of bird they call it "kwi.^tne" but people now, they don't call it that, they call it pia'otsu". Like they see that eagle flying over there and say, "There goes pia'otsu", big bird. But that eagle's name is kwi.^tne."

(How would you say, "there is an eagle"?)

"o^ksu^t kwi.^tne".

(Does that "o^ksu^t--)

Means, "there is a--"; Different things. You could say "o^ksu^t nar^hkuwa^t" means "there is a car".

(What about the word for train?)

"kun^hwe^ki"

(How would you say, "I'll be here tomorrow"?)

"bu^ts gona'wit^hroi".

leaving?)

(How would you say, I ~~went~~.)

"mia r^hna".

(How would you say, I went?)

mia a^t'na.

("They went"?)

"mia' "mia ^hu^hε".

(What about we went?)

"mia n^hε".

(So the "mia" stays the same?)
