

(And there was another duck they call the pintail, I don't see them anymore.)

We use to have them swans you know.

(Yeah. Swans use to come through here--?)

Yeah.

(Well, I never did see one.)

You know what they call brant, like a goose? Well you don't ever see them anymore. They used to come through here and stay awhile and then fly on. They are up high you can't shoot 'em. They are not here anymore.

(Are there any more flying squirrels?)

Yeah. And chipmunks.

(Well. I haven't seen one in years.)

Lot of them screech owls and them hoot owls and horn owls--they got little bitty eyes. And used to be lots of prairie chickens. I've seen bunches of them in the fields. But you don't ever see them now. The hunters have cleaned them out.

(And eagles. Are there any around here now?)

Yeah, eagles. They are around here. I think they got quite a few down there around Grand Lake.

(Is that right? I haven't seen one in years.)

Yeah. They down there and lots of ducks down there too.

(I remember seeing those muskrats.)

Yeah.

(Well do they have any left?)

Well there's a few of them around them ponds, you know. They don't have
