

Unidentified Man: Now while they are doing this, I'd like to relate a message. Mrs. Wallace Redbone stated to me, she said "Today I am very happy." She said, "Just here recently," she said, "We had a hard time when Wallace was sick. We tried everything--prayers, and we feel today our prayers have been answered." She said, "I am so grateful that all the things that we prayed for turn out the way it did, that we prayed for this young fellow and he is here and to see him dance again." Said "Makes me feel happy my husband could come with me here and for a while we didn't know what the future held for us, but now everything turned out all right." She want to thank the people for him; to the way they have responded to come and help us to make our day a successful one. She has thankfulness in her heart to all of you people, you different tribes come. She said, "I wish we could have reached out to all of you but you know the material things in life is limited, but nevertheless we did the best we could." She give thanks to all the singers.

Wallace: All the singers. Man singers. Just a minute. Hold everything!

The mother of Marvin Saddleblanket--she said it makes her feel good to see her son right here amongst his own people. Makes her feel good. So we then thought--young man like him, the song that he made, it made her feel good. So in behalf of her son and that song that he composed and sung for these people--the mother here wants to donate and pledge one beef for next years pow-wow. Mother Saddleblanket over here by the speakers stand. Connie Mae Saddleblanket.

...I like personally thank Frankie Redbone for the blanket he give me. Said, "I appreciate your help here," And he give me a blanket for helping him out here at this activity and I do appreciate and thank him for that.

Unidentified Man: All right, after two songs, let me see here our combined two specials here. I requested--alright, excuse me. Before Bruce goes home, Ray Black Bear there composed a song. He want to sing that song for Bruce at this time before he leaves. All right Ray let us have this song. Bruce Klinekole--
(Song lasts for about 10 minutes of tape.)
