

smoking. They use it that way. This way and then--but they use east first. They said everything comes from the east. And then it goes down, night comes and the north wind. In the wintertime, summer--oh, I couldn't even tell about that.

(So it's the small end of the pipe points to the east, west, north and south. Well, when they blow out the smoke do they blow the smoke any certain way?)

BEFORE DOCTORING, MEDICINE MEN MUST TAKE A SMOKE AND PRAY

They blow when they smoke, sometimes when they want to blow to the north, they just turn their head. And they blow four ways. Yeah, I'd be sitting over there and you'd come to me and want me to pray for your mother or someone that's sick. I'd take the smoke. Nobody's supposed to be around. They got to be very reverent. And I'd talk to the sun and I'd go back and talk to the west. And sometimes they, they turn and then they go north, they go west, south. Sometimes, some man, you know--.

(He sort of turns his head?),

Blow it different directions.

(Does he talk aloud when he's praying?)

No, no, not loud. They don't talk very loud. Nowadays they use cigarette instead of pipe.

(Oh, uh-huh.)

But that's just like the white man, they say the other thing's too common, they want a new style. So they just pull out a cigarette and light it. But I don't do that. No Christian people do that now. You take a cornbread--.

Bonnie: Do they put peyote in a cigarette, do you know?

A what?
