

--sort of a manufacturing type business with the understanding with the manufacturer that he would hire most of his employees be made up of Indians.

And if this thing went through, well then, we could have some sort of a profit coming off of that and put in to a fund to develop another business.

And just keep developing line of businesses across that area just to save this land, at that same time, giving employment to Indians, then set up sort of a housing area out there for the workers to live in and soon we'd have our own little village settin' out there on this Indian land. I know they say they haven't got any plans for it now, but you know they are "eye balling" it pretty thoroughly. And that goes for land--tribal land--you take the Apaches out west. They got a tribal herd. Its not going to make you a whole lot of profit, but its gonna be puttin' your profit back into your fund. And you could use that fund to educate some children with--like if t they went to a trade, well maybe he's got a business back here in your village that after they graduate, they can come right back and be employed.

Another way of looking at it after you've got everything set up, why you can put you in a grocery market out there and your profit off that would go back in your fund and just keep developing and at the same time, buy you more land so that you can develop with. Now this thought is in my mind and just about how well you gonna have to organize a force and who you gonna be up against --I know you gonna be up against the Agency for one thing. Because that's not private land, that's tribal land and they're gonna have a little say about that. That's my idea. Only its kinda round about way of helping out an individual, but if you do provide some sort of employment for him out there on tribal land, owned by tribal function well its well insured that he have it.

Ace: Okay . Thank you. Bobbie do you want to say something?