

they met together. And this white man Sainday, he was on horseback. And this Indian Sainday didn't have no saddlehorse, you know. He was just afoot. So this white man Sainday, he says, "I've been hearing about you telling story, cheating people, cheating people. Now I want to find out which one of us would be the best to cheat each other." So this--he was, he had his clothes on. Hat and coat and vest and everything. Dressed up, the white man was. So, well, he says, "You'll have to be pretty good to cheat me," The Indian said. Well, the white man Sainday, this white man Sainday said, "Well, I don't have to be too good because you're not, you're not educated enough to cheat me." All right, then, well, I'll tell you one thing. He was on a horseback (the white man)--mule, mule. It wasn't a horse, it was a mule. So he said, "Well, now I'll tell you what." He says, "I've got my medicine to, when I cheat anybody, why I have to use my medicine." But he says, "I've left my medicine over here. We're camping about two or one mile out west here, over the hill. I have to go get my medicine before I can cheat you. And you wait here. And I want to borrow your horse." He's already working on him but he didn't know it. Well, he said, "I want to borrow your horse--mule and go get my medicine."

Jenny: "I get back quick."

Cecil: So this white ~~uncle~~, I call him uncle--white uncle or Sainday, either way. Why, he says, "I'll lend you the mule." So, "All right," he says. "Well, I've got to ride him and I'll go up there and look over there at the camp over the hill to get my medicine. I'll hurry and you wait right here." So, "All right," he said, "Get on him." So he jumped on the mule and he said when he started
