

gets them and how he fixes them. They are in the earth. Some of them are in earth. Of course, I know some of them. But I don't know how to use them. Like I said, this when your urine stops, well, he's got some kind of herb medicine that he boils. I know he boils it and put it in there, a little bit. And it turns into tea like she's giving you.

(Thank you.)

Jenny: It turns that way. And then he lets his patient drink that and release it.

(That's delicious.)

Jenny: And then when a black widow sting you or how you call it-- you know, this poison, well, he can doctor that. He take all that poison out of you that is in you. Take it all out. And this what he was telling you about that doctor that ruin the faces of pretty women, well, they doctor that. They doctor that and they get them well. Clear up their faces. When they call on the Buffalo Medicine man, well, the other men, they go out and help him. They all help.

(You mean all the Buffalo Medicine men?)

Jenny: Yeah, there's four. They all get together and they all help. And they have this paint I'm telling you about. It's kind of a dark red paint that they get from the earth. And then that's what they paint their faces with. I've seen a woman my dad doctored. He painted after he got through doctoring he went and paint all her face. Paint it red. Then after you leave it on there about two days--two or three days, and she washed her face. Her face was clearing up. Put it back on. Later her face was clear. And they doctored Anna. (speaks Kiowa to Cecil)

Cecil: Yeah.
