

is pointed out, such as a funeral priest. They have a head cook and she oversees the whole dinner. The preparation, of it and she has--she picks helpers, so many, maybe five, six or so many. And she is the head cook and she is the boss, she oversees the whole dinner. She sees that it is properly prepared and how it is stored for the next day for the feast because there's preparations two or three days ahead for such a feast as a funeral feast and she sees that it is on time and on the table correctly and she has a rather serious job...

---

(End of Interview. End of Side B)