RECALLS ROUTINE SCHOOL REQUIREMENTS

Well at that time we learned to...learned to read and we learned to write. Before then we had to know our colors, they say. And we had to draw different things and colors. And I remember when we were there after we got to learning things. They taught us how to..they brought us some straw and they want us to make baskets.

(laughter). Which we didn't know one thing about anything like that but we tried our best. So we made just small articles. Concerning what they want us to make. We was proud. We didn't know what they were going to do with them. We heard somebody said, "Oh, why don't you just go ahead and make them because you know why they're going to send these to Washington D. C."(laughter) So just by that we tried our best, what we did. Wasn't much but we tried our best. Now after that we were going to school at Osage Boarding School. We had to work after we got older. We all worked half a day sometimes. We'd go to school of mornings and after dinner we went to work different places. Every three months we have to change where we were working. At the sewing room or in the laundry. Or at the kitchen. Or else cleaning the dormitory. Every three months we worked different places. But certain time had come up. That we had been working in the laundry, another girl and I. I don't remember just what her name was just now. But her and I continued working in the laundry. And our matron there said, "When you girls all change. I want these two to stay because they're the best ironers I've got." And from there why we worked the one place all throughout the school. We never got to change. And we just felt like we were pets. We always felt like that we were her favorites. Cause after everybody's gone well we stayed and ironed some more and took our time. She give us candy and had fruit for us after everybody had gone. We thought that was great. And when meal time comes, we ate breakfast there at school at certain
