(What kind of timber did you find in here in early days?)

Pretty good timber here when we first moved over here. Post oak and red oak. It's all been cut out now. There ain't nothing but black jack left.

(Where does this Dog Creek area start?)

Well, I guess it starts over west of here about a mile and a half. I think what they call the head of it, is over there at the old Drags place. There's a big spring there.

(Yeah.)

That's what they call the head of Dog Creek.

(Well, There's lots of Indians lived up and down Dog Creek at one time.)

We have growed lots tobacco here.

(You have? Well.)

And I have an uncle lived here with me. He'd plant him about an acre, about every year. It done good.

(Yeah.)

But I ain't raised none.

( Well does anhone raise tobacco anymore?)

No I don't think so. An old fellow down south here raised one. What is his name--do you know?

Viella: "Oh dad, I forgot. I remember but I have forgot."

He may still live over there. He did a year or so ago. He might still raise some.

(Yeah.)

Viella: Dad's uncle could fix it till it just look like real bought tobacco.

(Well.)

(next sentence not clear.)
