

to pay for a lease. For farm lease. That's where it start. And on up. That's for a hundred and sixty acres. Regardless of how much government got control of those grades. Buy a tractor. They won't allow you to buy a second-hand tractor. No. Unless it's passed by the Area Office. If it's in good shape, they let you buy it. That runs from fifteen hundred to two thousand dollars--or twenty-five hundred--for a tractor. Good tractor, Well, there's two-bottom or three-bottom--that's movable--theres the plow--that costs around three or four hundred dollars. And there's your harrow, and tandom disc, wheat drill, planter. And they won't let you buy anything that's fancy or anything that you're not going to use. That tandom disc is to chop up the sod. Break up the sod. Those days it's according to--if you buy a Ford tractor, or (unintelligible word--may be brand name of farm equipment) or John Deere-- stuff like that, you know. The equipment's, they run in horse-powers. Ford is about the smallest tractor you can buy, you know. And the equipment--you can use power-lift or drag-type implements. That's up to you, what kind of implements you want to use. They all run in different prices. Power-life--that like hydraulic, you know. You lift it off the ground. Those run into money. You put all them bills together and maybe it'll cost you around five or six thousand dollars--just the implements--not counting your lease money. All right. Now you're going to come to your fuel. You must know just how much fuel it's going to take. You're going to have to plow. You're going to have to harrow. Or maybe you're going to have to tandom disc. And then you would have to use a drill to put in your oats or wheat or whatever. And this planter--a row-crop planter. All right. You're going to have to know just how much gasoline it's going to take, and the expense--without breaking down. And oil--stuff like that. You got to know pretty close.

(How did they handle the gasoline--you just have a tank?)

You figure all that out, and you present it with your application. And when it's approved, they'll draw out your money and put it in the bank, or--no. They leave it in Anadarko. When you want so much money for some operation, you go down there and they give
