DECISION MAKING WITHIN A SIBLING GROUP
(What if all twelve did share in it and one of them wanted to form it--could that be worked out?)

Yeah. That would be up to them. I'll put it this way--there's five of us-me and Irene and Gertie, Ace and Blackie (these are Alfred's brothers and sisters). We got. inherited lands. And it's working all right: ' We got oil in several places we inherit together. When it comes time to business, I'm kind of sort of adviser; or administrator. I don't make all the decisions. I like them to make it with me. I think things can be worked out like that, so it will be fair. I think I can depend ón my kids. They can work out something together. Which I'm hoping. 'Of course they all know now that I got my--" all my 'inherited lands and my lands already fixed out. That's including my wife.
(Some conversation on family matters and end of tape.)
