

Homecoming. Homecoming.

Mrs. Longtail: "Open house or something."

(Yes.)

Mrs. Longtail: "And then they wrote this piece up themselves."

(I see.)

Mrs. Longtail: "And they wanted our picture because he was one of the first customers."

(My goodness! Well, I know you're happy to have that. I know I would be.)

We have a picture of him and my mother together. When our children was here. Uh--few days ago, and they took it. They sneaked it off. And we didn't know it till after they'd already got it. They're gonna have it hand painted. And as a surprise for us. They just come in; they take this one off; and had it hand painted for us.

(Isn't that wonderful.)

And they took the picture of Mother and Daddy off.

(I notice there is one grave of a Rhoda Brown out there in the--)

That's Mrs. Beck's daughter.

(Mrs. Beck's daughter. Uh-huh. Now let's see. And a Chouteau Brown.)

Chouteau Brown?

(Course he was only eight years old. He died in 1895.)

Uh--what age?

(Eight years old.)

Eight. That's--it's probably her brother. (Inaudible) out there. I think Mrs. Beck was married to a Brown before she became a Beck.

(Now Evan Brown that lives at Big Cabin, was he of that family?)

No. No. He's not part of them.

(What was Grandma Beck's first name, do you remember?)

I don't know.

Mrs. Longtail: "Elisa."
