

Get up to the porch.

(Hum-m.)

Me and my brother, Walt, one time we got into a fight. We fell over in that snow. (Laughter.) That's what (not clear) . I think it happened a week or two back. (Laughter.)

(Yeah.)

And I can't remember. Lord, lord, yes. We used to have a good time together. But we had a fight once in a while.

(And the Arkansas River is not far from here.)

No, it's right back yonder.

(Yeah. Well how did you get across it in those days?)

In a ferry boat.

(Oh you had a ferry boat there.)

Yeah. They had a ferry boat down there. And I've heard my mother say one time that Arkansas River froze over. And they traveled over with wagons and horsebacks and everything. For six weeks. Before they ever did get so they couldn't cross.

(Well.)

They couldn't run the boats, you know.

(Yeah.)

'Cause it was froze over and thick with ice. And people would go down there and cut great big holes in the ice. And that's how they got the fish. Them fish would come to them holes.

(Well.)

And the people would get them when they come up.

TOWN OF WEBBER FALLS

(Now let's see, Webber Falls is just across the river.)
