

(Well, how did these people treat you all? Can you remember how they treated you all?)

Well, the first evening we were there, why, they--this man had a big family.

(Tell us about his family.)

He had several children. I don't know whether he had--he must have had about eight or ten and--first meal we took with them--they had a long table in the dining room and they called us to come and eat the evening meal with them, which consists of bread, on each end of the table--home made bread and they had a big--big pitcher on each end and we all stood around the table to each chair and prayed. Then, we'd sit down and as we'd sit down--I was waiting--I was waiting for them to bring the food, but I understand later that he said that is what we were going to have for our evening meal, was just milk and bread.

(That's all you had, just milk and bread.)

Just milk and bread was all we had.

(You was waitin' on the main course---)

I was waitin'--(laughter) so we eat meat and bread. (Laughter)

(You mean milk and bread.)

I mean milk and bread. It just seem like we didn't get full on that meal.

We all, I guess, went to sleep hungry, (Laughter)

CONDITION OF LAND - NOT GOOD FOR FARMING. MORMONS A HARDY PEOPLE

(On this trip as you looking at the land--how did this land appear to you at the time you remember. Was it fertile land? Was it in the--you said it wasn't in the mountains and it was--what kind of land was it? Soil rather?)

Well, I noticed when we were going in the car, and on the train too, that the land didn't look so good. It was sort of like a desert and I didn't
