

father and his family took at that time. So at this time, I will have my mother's view of the trip as she saw it in her own words.)

I, Marie Maker, will repeat the story of the trip we made. As we all prepared, there were four car load of us.

(What kind of cars did you have?)

My mother-in-law had a Cadillac car and my husband had a Lincoln touring car and I also had a Cadillac. Then we had a panel truck for our luggages and our camping use. We all prepared and had supply a little of everything on a camping trip, in case we have to camp. We left from here, we went to Kansas.

(Just before you go on. How many do you remember was in the party? How many people were in the party?)

There were thirteen of us in the party.

(Can you name the most of them?)

I, myself, and my children. Name of the children too?

(What's that? Yeah, name 'em all. Leo, Leonard, Lloyd, and Harry.)

There was Leo, Leonard, Harry and Leona and their dad, Ross Maker.

(And you got to my father, and who else besides my father, and his mother and what's her name and all that. You are naming the party? Now, you left off with my dad. Now you take his mother and go on from there--his driver and everything else.)

His mother, she also had a driver. His name was Purdy Peck and we also had a another driver in the panel truck which we had camping supplies and luggages. His name was Louis Archambo.

(What kind of Indian was he?)

He was a Sioux. He was very nice--very nice man. Also Purdy.

(How many cars did you take? Four cars?)

We took four cars with us.
