

(Yeah)

To turn the soil, and some of them be walking behind the walking plow. That's the way they turn the soil. Nowadays they have big tractors.

(Horseback and buggy. Hum.)

People had buggy and wagons and the wheels tood way up there. That was before the cars come in.

(Yeah)

So it would go.

(Yeah)

Cars back here and there they had carbide lights.

FLU EDPIDEMIC AFTER WORLD WAR I

(What kind of doctors did they have in early days?

Most herb doctors.

(Yeah. Herb doctor. And they knew what to go out and get to treat different victims.)

You know it don't seem like they had quite as much sickness.

(Yeah)

As there are now.

(That World War I flu it must have been bad.)

Lot of them died.

(Lot of them died.)

Lot of them died on this, their own home. Up here close to Dodge.

(Yeah)

North of Dodge.

FATHER'S ALLOTMENT ON HONEY CREEK

(Yeah, north of Dodge. And your dad's allotment was on Honey Creek.)

Yeah.

(Yeah.)
