

~~We went trade we went to Grove.~~

(Uh-huh. That was the only place that, to buy anything I guess.)

We raise a little wheat and take it way over to Dodge you know.

(Yeah)

Get it ground. We haul thousand pounds of flour sometimes.

(Uh-huh)

Something like that.

(Well)

(Conversation is inaudible - static)

I believe the folks - he worked for was Jonington.

(Jonington, the reason I asked, don't see much timber up in there anymore.),

No.

(Just little stuff.)

You see some going south to Jay. Go through Jay or come to Jay you know where you're at. You know where these used car wrecks.

(Yeah)

Salvage yard. Turn there and stay on that highway there. Just drive right into Southwest city.

(Uh-huh. And there's lots of timber in that country in those early days.)

There was then. Yeah.

(Yeah)

Later on they come in and take big bulldozer and skin the ground off.

(Uh-huh)

MADE RAILROAD TIES - CLAPBOARD SHINGLES

My dad and me even made railroad ties.

(Well. Log houses in early days. What did they use on the roof? Did they make shingles?)

Yeah, they made shingles, call them clap board.
