

Mr. Flint: What?

Jenny: Was it called Prairie City School?

Mr. Flint: Yes. It was made like a town, a mile square.

(Uh-hum)

Mr. Flint: First thing you knowed they moved the whole thing out.

(About what year was that?)

Mr. Flint: I was about three or four years old.

(Sentence not clear)

Mr. Flint: (word not clear) years ago.

(Well)

Jenny: He was about four years old. It'd be five from sixty-eight, wouldn't it?

(Yes.)

Jenny: It'd be eight-one years ago. It'd be 1884.

(Yeah it'd be about 1883, 1884. My that's a long time ago, isn't it?)

Jenny: That's right.

LOCATION AND USE OF BERRY CEMETERY

(And you said, I believe you said one of the old cemeteries is close by here.)

Jenny: East of Glen Buck's. It's still over there.

(Uh-huh)

It's all growed up and broken except for our lot.

(Uh-huh)

We keep it cleaned off. And the Angel lot has a rock wall around it.

(And did it have a name too, ma'am?)

It's the Berry Cemetery.

(Berry)

It was named after one of the Berry's.

(Uh-hum)
