

Cotton, corn, beets, oats, dried beans.

(Huh)

And castor beans, broom corn.

(Well)

Milo Maize. Kafir corn.

(Was that flat country?)

Yeah.

(Uh-huh)

(Close to Ryan.)

Uh-huh.

(Uh-huh. Was the closest town?)

And you go straight south. It was so much of the time, you couldn't go on Red land them days.

(Yeah)

Yeah but they finally got a good boat and outfit in there.

(Yeah)

A Spanish Fort. Burlington.

(Burlington?)

And Indian name.

(Uh-huh,)

CYCLONE DESTROYED LARGE HOME 1897

(Not clear). There was a man come in here and he married a full blood Indian woman. Delaware.

(Uh-huh)

And he worked slaves.

(Huh)

And he built that big brick house my brother lived in on this side of the river. And one that Marvin Halstead lived here on the other side.

(Yeah)

Well, this one on this side at Marlin school. That cyclone we had way back
