

but I would like to go one more year in harness making. So, he said alright. Before I got through with that I got tired of it and I went to making wagons. I went to making wagons one year. Started to make wheels and I come home. I took a chance that I don't know about the harness making, I might do that, I said. But I want to see my father first. See if he's willing, I know he won't let me do it, go, but I'll ask him. So, I come home. First thing you know, want to marry me off, marry me off. I didn't get to go. He never told me another thing about it. I was getting ready to go, my time was up. Four years I went. I even made an application father didn't do it either. He didn't want me to go no more. So he married me off before I knew it. I was sorry I didn't get to go back up there. I wanted to go back up there. That's where I lost everything. From then on everything I try to do I do wrong.

(Oh not everything, you come this far and made it.)

I tell you when I got married. Folks here didn't have nothing. All they done was mostly gamble all the time. People come over here to gamble. I had to fix the well, I had to fix the barn, never had nothing. Then father give the team away and brother-in-law he brought me two horses from Fairfax. I use them --

(End of Tape.)
