

(The last indication that anyone was buried there was 1910. That's the latest date that I find over there for anybody. Then it goes back into the 1870's. Then the other one over, way over in the Shawnee Hills. He seemed to think that they might have called it the Harvey.)

Bill Harvey's land. It was on his land. But the Secondine is there, too. (Yeah, the Secondine is buried there. There's no Harvey tombstone that we found.)

The Secondines and--I don't know anybody up there. I don't know--

(Let's see, Secondine and Thomas, and Brown and Nolans and some more Secondines--is the ones that's over there.)

They had leave of that long--

(Long time ago. So, it might have been the Secondine cemetery, too.)

It could be. It's on Harvey place, but then the Secondines joined them.

(Yeah, John Secondine was Henry Secondine's daddy; and he's one of the oldest ones, I believe.)

I wouldn't know the relations, but I know his individual family, John Secondine's. He's got, let's see, he's got three or four girls. Their name is Nannie Thomas and Alma Nolan, she (inaudible) by an old lady Harvey was buried there, I don't know what her name is.

(Yes, ma'am.)

So, I just couldn't say for sure.

(See, old lady Harvey she was buried way over here.)

Upon the Secondine-Harvey cemetery.

(Yes. Can you think of any more that might have been buried over there that they didn't put a marker up for?)

I don't know because just before these daughters died, well, they already condemned burying anybody over there. Those three daughters. Now, however, one of these daughters got one child there, but soon after that it was condemned.
