

He's a cousin to Grandma Anson. She just a mile up here.

(Uh-huh)

He come up here and preach quite a while. Held service. He talk in his language to her. She's the oldest one around. Talked to her, and Maggie in English and then Delaware. Then he talked American talk.

(Yeah)

American to them. Oh there was preachers come here from everywhere. Come here. I used to play piano for them. Up there in the old school house. Had a prayer meetings. Finally them come, brought in Holly Rollers. They come in. I took out.

(Yeah)

They went to dancing. A few of them Rolling.

(Yeah.)

That stopped me from playing.

(Well where did the Delawares meet for their meetings usually?)

At Alluwe.

(At Alluwe.)

They had a play house down there. Just cross Brushy Creek on the end of the bottom over there.

(Yeah)

That's where we met.

(Uh-huh)

And Grandma Anson her, first man, Buck, he was drowned down there. He drank quite a bit. And he took to swim up the river and it was up. Grandpa Anson he tried to get him not to do it but he didn't listen to him- dove right on in.

(Well)
