

Well not much different than it is now. We had more houses now.

(Yeah it was just about the same.)

Well there's not very many people here that was here when we first came.

(Yes.)

Now the Quisenberries, they were old people. They lived up on the hill. They don't live there anymore. One (not clear)--

THE GREENFEATHER AND CHOUTEAU FAMILIES

(Was the Blackfeather--the Greenfeather family still around here when you folks came?)

No--part of the Greenfeathers. But I don't know. I don't remember now where they lived. It's been a long time ago. But one of the Greenfeather boys went out here, and stopped to see me two or three years ago.

(Yes. I guess they all moved away. Those that didn't pass away. Where did that fellow live? Do you remember?)

Well seem to me like he lives in California now. I'm not sure. Do you know where any of the Greenfeathers live? They were in Kansas, the last time I heard. (Next sentence not clear--static)

(Were the Chouteau's living here when you folks first came?)

Well the younger Chouteau's, some of them were. But I don't remember now where they lived. (Background conversation.)

(Went to Vinita. That was the trading center then.)

(Not clear) railroad now.

INDIAN FAIR WAS AN AFFAIR WHICH EVERYONE ENJOYED-LASTED FOUR DAYS

(No the trains are a thing of the past now. Did they have Indian Fair right down below your house here?)

Yes.

(What did you all do in those days?)

Well they had a swing and had a guy get up here and go down a rope with his teeth, you know.
