

(Yeah.)

In the neighborhood. Father and mother lived down in there where I was born. I think there was two more children born when we lived on that river.

(Yes.) (Sentence not clear)

Yes.

(And who was your daddy?)

Caleb Murray.

(Phillip Murray.)

Caleb Murray.)

(Murray.) Caleb Murray.' And your mother--who was she before she married?)

Sallie Davis.

(Sallie Davis. And then they moved up here on the prairie--later.)

Yes. (Course I guess they were farmers like everybody else.)

Oh yes. They were farmers. You know, plow with the horse. Have nothing like an old tractor or nothing. Oh yes.

(Well, you've seen a lot of things in your time, I know.)

Oh yes sir! And heard a lot of things.

(And hear a lot of things.)

But I love the Lord.

(Oh yes. Well the olden days, the people were happier I believe, than they are now.)

Why yes sir! Oh I can remember. When mama cooked on the fire.

(Well.)

Now we got electricity and gas.

(Yeah that's right. (not clear) Now then they were Freedmen were they?)

Oh yes.

(Your mother and daddy. Well isn't that nice.)

Oh yes. My grandmother, she was an Indian woman.
