

(Well. Well, there's been a lot of changes that you've seen here, I guess.)

Oh yeah.

(Roads have changed)

Still a making them.

EARLY SCHOOL AT BUTLER

(Still making them, yes ma'am. What was your school up here when you were a young girl.)

Butler.

(Butler School. That's the one way back over on the hill.)

When you go to that Butler Cemetery it's just where you turn off there at the gate to go to the Cemetery.

(Yes ma'am)

The road, it's just about a quarter, I guess, out where the old school used to be. Big spring up there. And that's where I went to school.

(I don't guess there's anything left there anymore is there?)

That old school there. No, nothing left.

LAMENTS THE FACTS THAT SO FEW OF ITEMS USED IN EARLY DAYS HAVE NOT BEEN PRESERVED.

(You know that's the way of a great lot of the old schools they didn't preserve them. 'Course now they want to find out something about them. Well, they're all gone and they can't preserve them anymore or keep them. And they didn't think about it a long time ago.)

No.

(About those things.)

No, they didn't.

(And well just, not only that but old tools, things like that, you know, that were common when you folks were framing and growing up. And now they're almost priceless. People pay any kind of money for those old antique tools. And if we'd known then we--)
