

people used to have--

(I don't believe they have.)

I don't believe it.

(The white people's influence have ruined a lot of things.)

Yeah. Yeah, they have.

(Course I guess progress is a wonderful thing but it can also work against some people too.)

Yes.

('Cause now days people are not really happy. The majority of people are not happy.)

No, you know these--

(Even though they do have a whole lot.)

They used to have these old stomp dances down here on Rush Creek. I and my husband go and stay about four days. We didn't care for what little we had at home. We just lock up the door and go and stay down there.

I didn't dance, not hardly, sometimes I would, sometimes I wouldn't. It ain't a dancing. It's just song dance.

(Yes)

And then a song. But anyhow we enjoyed it.

(Why surely)

His folks all lived down there, you know. His father and mother didn't, but the rest of them did.

(Yeah)

My dad was a good hand to sing. And Jbe Fox.

(What was your daddy's name, Miss Cheater?)

James Wright.

(James Wright)

Sure had good times. And then they would, there was an old man by the name of Tauuneacie.
