

(Yeah)

Tauuneacie Squirrel.

TAUUNEACIE SQUIRREL WAS A PREACHER

And they've got a little graveyard up here on Jay road. A family graveyard.

(Yes ma'am)

When she was well, we'd get somebody to go up and and preach (word not clear). But after she go to where she (word not clear) you know. We put her in a rest home. Couldn't get nobody take care of her.

(Tauuneacie Squirrel was chat her daddy?)

No, that was her father-in-law.

(Oh, her father-in-law)

Jeff's wife married Tauuneacie's son.

(Yeah)

Dan.

(Oh yeah, I know now.)

Dan Tauuneacie.

(There was a large family of those folks, wasn't there, at one time? I guess they're all gone now.)

Yeah, they run back into these Muskrat. Tauuneacie's wife was Jane Muskrat.

(Yes.)

Yeah, there was all kinds of--and that Tauuneacie that I'm telling you about the old man Tauuneacie. He come from up there and come down by our house and walk to Butler and preach. He was a preacher. Tauuneacie Squirrel.

(Yeah, I've heard about him a long time ago.)

Yeah. And he'd stop at our house and my daddy'd have some of us kids go down the road when he was a going home, you know. From a meeting going back up here. He'd say, "You'uns go down there and have Grandpappy Tauuneacie come up the house."
