

(That's the way it seems.)

It seem like to me that way.

(Yeah. And you know people don't have time to visit either.)

No.

(Even next door neighbors in town don't visit.)

Why they don't know when one dies right there--

(No, they don't. Person could be dead for two or three days and no one would know it.)

Yeah.

(Was there ever a railroad in this country?)

Well, there was, did have one come to Grove, but then it didn't last too long. I don't know what--

(Came from Arkansas through here.)

GREAT GRANDPARENTS CAME ON TRAIL OF TEARS

(Did they, did your folks come on the Trail of Tears too?)

Yeah, my great grandparents, I think, did.

(Yes)

There's old lady and she's an Indian woman and she stays down here. She lives at the nursing home at Grove.

(Yes ma'am)

Her name is Miss Meredith. I bet she could tell you lot of stuff.

(I'll make a point to see her. Miss Meredith, huh?)

I think she lives up there in that rest home in town. Now there's one rest home down this side, but she stays up there in town where Doc Henry used to own.

(Yes. Well, next time up at Grove I'll go see her then.)

She's an awful nice old lady.

(Yeah)
