

the way they did. They didn't try to learn me. And they would talk Cherokee when I was little, and when it was something they didn't want me to understand, they'd talk that. I was the only kid, just us three, you know. But I, finally got to where I could catch them conversations. They couldn't talk before me then. (laughter) You know George Sanders?

(Yes. What was your mother's maiden name?)

Brown.

(Huh?)

Brown.

(Brown?)

Yes. Old lady (name not clear) and Christies - You know any Christies?

And Graces?

(Yeah.)

Well, them Clem Fullers and my mother - they all four were sisters. That's how that family graveyard started.

(Interview continued on Side B)