Higher Education for Your Children . . .

Right now, while they're still young, is the time to start planning the most hazardous "school crossing" of all for your children—the transition from high school to college, with the attendant increase in expenses. And to help give you a system of savings for this purpose, Bankers Service Life offers a comprehensive educational plan. It provides a program of savings and assures an educational fund for the children in the event of your prior death.
