First National's Contacts with Other Banks an Aid to Customers

It is of pronounced advantage to every checking customer, regardless of his business, to have his bank in close and constant touch with banks in other cities. Checks which the customer deposits are then collected as quickly as possible. He can then obtain prompt, reliable credit information on out-of-town business concerns and individuals, and make quick transfers of funds.

The fact that more than half of the banks of Oklahoma have selected The First National Bank and Trust Company as their correspondent in Oklahoma City makes it possible for us to serve you better. In most cases our officers have personal friendships with officers of those banks. In other words, when one of our customers asks us to get information or action in another city, the request receives prompt personal attention rather than routine handling.
