Union Welcomes
1948-49 Sooners

The break of dawn, September 6, even through an official holiday, meant labor for all hands of the Oklahoma Memorial Union Building.

Why? Up on second floor in the office of the counselor of men, last minute details were being worked out to assure an efficient handling of fraternity rushes streaming in for Rush Week. In the Independent Men's Association offices, plans for a dynamic year of growth were being formulated.

In the basement the University Book Exchange employees were stocking their shelves for the enrollment boom and the cafeteria personnel was cleaning and polishing.

On first the business office and alumni offices were carrying on their routine business and in the tower WNAD was warming up for fall operations. Moving day, roof repair, face lifting with a little paint to cover a multitude of sins, were all in progress on Labor Day.

Yes, the Union was ready when well over 10,000 students descended on the campus for enrollment on September 15.
