The Act of Violence

The malicious abnormalities that motivate violence and death in a civilized society are examined by Dr. Louis J. West, who is the O.U. School of Medicine's director of psychiatry, neurology and behavioral sciences.

A Reach for Greatness

Members of O.U.'s National Council hear an encouraging progress report when they gather at the Center for Continuing Education to discuss the future of the University's Plan for Excellence, the blueprint for academic greatness.

McCarver of the Cards

Following a great season as No. 1 catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, Tim McCarver, the National League's outstanding sophomore of 1963, rushes back to college to continue his pursuit of a degree in business management.

O.U. and Mr. Conant

The study of an important new book on American teacher education and a view of teacher education at O.U. are the subjects of this commentary on commentaries by Dr. James G. Harlow, dean of the University's College of Education.

also in this issue

Sooner Scene . . . Page 9
From Teller to Tiara . . . Page 12
Roll Call . . . Page 18
Conversation Piece . . . Page 18

the cover

Shocked and saddened by the loss of their President, O.U. students sit in numb silence watching television on a black Friday, November 22. Such a tragedy asks us, "How can this happen in the United States?" Perhaps the answer can be found in The Act of Violence, page 2.