CONTENTS

3 THE COUSINS
International students who come to the University of Oklahoma to pursue academic goals are going home with friends for a lifetime and treasured memories of a Sooner experience that made them members of the family.

9 CELEBRATION OF THE CREATIVE SPIRIT
Richard and Adeline Fleischaker quietly assembled a breathtaking personal art collection. When settlement of their estates necessitated its sale, OU donors stepped forward to bring the collection to the Fred Jones Jr. Museum of Art.

16 WHEN THE HENDERSONS CAME TO NORMAN
They were a highly educated, respected, cultured family—but they were black, and 30 years ago no black family ever had owned a home in this community. A faculty couple looks back on the price of racial understanding.

20 WINDOWS IN TIME
Visitors and students alike pause in the hallways and offices of campus buildings to read the inscriptions under hundreds of photographic images from the University’s past, all mined from the treasures in the OU Archives.

26 RETURN TO KATHMANDU
Spending quality time with one’s son usually means taking in a ball game or building model airplanes. But OU’s Steve and Chris Sloan took togetherness to new heights with a father-son outing to the far-away, exotic kingdom of Nepal.
