DEATHS

Dr Jesse J. Hoover

Dr Jesse J. Hoover, '25 med., died January 22, 1930 in Boulder, Colorado. He was buried at Rose Hill Cemetery at Oklahoma City. His home was 1937 West 17th Street, Oklahoma City.

T. Roger Leahy

T. Roger Leahy, '21 law, died October 25 in a Tulsa hospital from shock following an operation performed on his arm injured three months ago in an automobile accident. Mr Leahy was a member of the Osage county League of Young Democrats, and prominent in Pawhuska civic affairs.

Alice Corff

Alice Corff, a freshman, died October 12 at a hospital in Oklahoma City. Her death was the result of a collapse after seeing a fatal accident on the downtown streets in Oklahoma City.

Robert Thomas Williams

Professor Thomas Williams, the fourteen-year-old son of Dr Guy Y. Williams, '06 arts-sc., M. A. '10, director of the school of chemical engineering, and Mrs Ella Thomas Williams, '06 arts-sc., died at his parent's home in Norman October 31 from an attack of bronchial asthma.

Dr Maurice G. Smith

Dr Maurice G. Smith, head of the department of anthropology, died October 22 in the university infirmary as a result of typhoid fever contracted presumably from tainted milk. Doctor Smith, who was twenty-eight years old, was attracting national attention to the work he was doing in research in Indian lore. He came to the university in 1929 as an associate professor and was beginning his second year as a member of the faculty. He was editor of the Proceedings of the Oklahoma Academy of Science for 1930. He is survived by a wife and son, Paul.

YEAR BY YEAR

George B. "Desk" Parker, '07 arts-sc., of New York city, editor in chief of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, visited Norman during the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of Kappa Alpha fraternity. He spoke before the Sigma Alpha fraternity smoker, pointing out that the greatest need of today in newspapers is for less telephone reporting and more personal reporting. Mr. Parker told the Norman Transcript, that, apart from professional opportunities, he would prefer to live in a city of from 100,000 to 200,000 persons.

1910

Miss Jessie Newby, '10 arts-sc., resigned her position of head of the foreign language department in Classen high school in Oklahoma City, to accept the position of head of the Latin department at Central State Teachers college at Edmond. Miss Newby had been at Classen for the last six years.

1911

Dr Edward Everett Dale, '11 arts-sc., head of the history department of the university, addressed the faculty of Central high school at Tulsa November 5.

1912

When Dr Joseph V. DePorte, '12 arts-sc., returned to the university campus November 1 for the first time since graduation, he found a changed school. The administration building was just being completed when he was graduated; it had never been occupied. Science hall and the old Carnegie library were the buildings on the campus then. Doctor DePorte is now the director of vital statistics for the New York state department of health. Fifteen hundred workers are under his direction. His trip west was to speak at the national health conference in Dallas, Texas, and at several universities en route.

Miles are nothing to this Kerr Service

On October 30th our Personal Shopping Bureau received a letter from Fairbanks, Alaska, containing an order for merchandise seen in one of our daily advertisements. This order came from a former resident of Oklahoma and who has been a customer of Kerr's for years.

A short time ago our Personal Shopping Bureau received a request for Kerr merchandise from South America. This lady, too, was a former resident of Oklahoma and a good customer of Kerr's.

Miles are nothing to this Kerr service - it is yours for the asking. Write or phone to the Personal Shopping Bureau.
