YEAR BY YEAR

1905

The year 1935 brought Biff Jones and a new football era to the University of Oklahoma.

It was exactly 30 years earlier that another coach embarked upon a career at O. U. and raised Sooner grid fortunes from poverty to a prosperous level—and a 2-to-0 victory over Texas University.

Any loyal son of Soonerland today gladly would give his raccoon coat for a football win over the Longhorns and it was the same back in 1905.

Oklahoma elevens had been taking their licking regularly when university officials yielded to a popular clamor and decided to do something about it.

Remembering a team which had walloped the Sooners the previous season, they turned to small Bethany College of Lindsborg, Kansas, and offered its diminutive mentor the job as O. U. coach.

Benny Owen's acceptance is one of the landmarks in the entire athletic history of the University of Oklahoma. For 20 years he coached the Sooner grid teams; for eight additional years he served as athletic director and for the last two years he has been director of physical education.

But this is a story about that 1905 grid team, the first of Owen's "old gangs."

The team won seven out of nine games, losing to Kansas and Washburn but scoring that satisfying win over the Texas Longhorns.

An inkling that the Sooners were going to be no pushover for the Longhorns that year was afforded when Oklahoma trounced the strong Haskell Indians, 18 to 12, and Sooner enthusiasm was at a peak when the teams took the field at old Colcord Park in Oklahoma City.

After a stubborn first half, during which each team made a goal-line stand to stave off touchdowns, Bob Severin, center, capitalized on a Texas boner to score the game's only two points on a safety.

The game-winning tally was registered when the Texans, on their own goal-line, chose to try a running play.

When Robinson started around end, Severin was on him like a flash, pushing the ball-carrier back across the goal. Failure to yell "down" cost the Texans the tilt, a man not being down until he admitted it.

The present whereabouts of Severin, the only Sooner to wear a shinguard, is unknown to his buddies.

These were the grand old days of the gridiron when most everything was permissible.

The motif of the times is seen in this excerpt from a writeup of the O.U.-Haskell Indian game by Coach Owen:

"With typical Redskin guile," he wrote, "Haskell used trickery to score its first touchdown. . . . A few plays later Acton, our halfback, took the ball on a plunge through the line and disappeared in a mass of players.

"Imagine our astonishment when suddenly out of the pile popped Moore, big Indian quarterback, who ran 25 yards for a touchdown. He had stolen the ball."

Runbeck, to get even, tried the same thing a
